SOCIEDAD MONT PELERIN

THE MONT PELERIN SOCIETY

Reunión Chile, 15 al 19 de noviembre de 1981

1977 - 1983

HISTORIA

SOCIEDAD MONT PELERIN

Fundada hace 30 años en Mont Pelerin, Suiza, por un grupo de académicos que se propuso impulsar un nuevo orden económico y político que prevaleciera la libertad, oponiéndose al estatismo.

Entre sus fundadores:

Friedrich A. von Hayek, Premio Nobel, 1er. Pdte.
Wilhem Roepke, inspirador de la política económica de Alemania.

Ludwig Erhard, Ministro de Economía y Canciller de Alemania.

Enaudi, Presidente de Italia

Jacques Rueff, inspirador de la política económica de Francia.

Entre sus miembros actuales:

Milton Friedman, presidente de la Sociedad hasta 1974.

Paul McCracken, economista, Jefe de la casa Blanca bajo Nixon

Takeo Fukuda, Primer Ministro del Japón

La Sociedad cuenta con unos 300 miembros (se ingresa por invitación), no adopta acuerdos, no hace publicidad. Sus miembros y su directorio se reúnen una vez al año en algún lugar del mundo.

El espíritu de la Sociedad responde en buena medida al espíritu liberal inglés del siglo XIX.

La Sociedad ha evolucionado de una institución básicamente europea cuyos miembros cultivan diversas disciplinas : Economía, Historia Política, Filosofía, etc., hacia una institución en la que predominan los norteamericanos y, desde un punto de vista profesional, los economistas.

Las reuniones de la Sociedad congregan unos 200 miembros, aparte de las señoras y de los invitados que concurren en calidad de posibles candidatos a integrar la Sociedad.

Si se aceptara la sugerencia de reunirse en Chile se podría contar con unas 200 personas extraordinariamente destacadas en el pensamiento económico que prevalece hoy en nuestro país.

MONT PELERIN SOCIETY

Summary of History and Aims

- 1) After World War II, in which many of the values of western civilisation were imperilled, 36 scholars, mostly economists, with some historians and philosophers, were invited by Professor Hayek to meet at Mont Pelerin, near Montreux, Switzerland, to discuss the state and the possible fate of liberalism in thinking and practice.

Here, "liberal" is used in its European sense, broadly epitomised by a preference for minimal and dispersed government, rather than in its current American sense which indicates the opposite preference for an extension and concentration of governmental powers.

- 2) After 10 days of deliberation, it was decided to meet again for further discussion, and on 10 April, 1947, the Founder Members composed a "Statement of Aims."

"The central values of civilisation are in danger. Over large stretches of the earth's surface the essential conditions of human dignity and freedom have already disappeared. In others they are under constant menace from the development of current tendencies of policy. The position of the individual and the voluntary group are progressively undermined by extensions of arbitrary power. Even that most precious possession of Western Man, freedom of thought and expression, is threatened by the spread of creeds which, claiming the privilege of tolerance when in the position of a minority, seek only to establish a position of power in which they can suppress and obliterate all views but their own.

"The group holds that these developments have been fostered by the growth of a view of history which denies all absolute moral standards and by the growth of theories which question the desirability of the rule of law. It holds further that they have been fostered by a decline of belief in private property and the competitive market; for without the diffused power and initiative associated with these institutions it is difficult to imagine a society in which freedom may be effectively preserved.

"Believing that what is essentially an ideological movement must be met by intellectual argument and the reassertion of valid ideals, the group, having made a preliminary exploration of the ground, is of the opinion that further study is desirable inter alia in regard to the following matters:

- (1) The analysis and exploration of the nature of the present crisis so as to bring home to others its essential moral and economic origins.
- (2) The redefinition of the functions of the state so as to distinguish more clearly between the totalitarian and the liberal order.
- (3) Methods of re-establishing the rule of law and of assuring its development in such manner that individuals and groups are not in a position to encroach upon the freedom of others and private rights are not allowed to become a basis of predatory power.
- (4) The possibility of establishing minimum standards by means not inimical to initiative and functioning of the market.
- (5) Methods of combatting the misuse of history for the furtherance of creeds hostile to liberty.
- (6) The problem of the creation of an international order conducive to the safeguarding of peace and liberty and permitting the establishment of harmonious international economic relations."

- 3) The group described itself as The Mont Pelerin Society.* It emphasised that it did not intend to create an orthodoxy, to form or to align itself with any political party or parties, or to conduct propaganda. Its sole object was to facilitate an exchange of ideas between like-minded scholars in the hope of strengthening the principles and practice of a free society and to study the workings, virtues, and defects of market-oriented economic systems.
- 4) Since 1947, 20 General and 5 Special (regional) Meetings have been held, mostly in Europe but also in the U.S.A., Japan and Venezuela (see appended list). Membership has risen from under 50 to approaching 400. It has attracted men and women from over twenty nations diverse in academic discipline, age and renown.

The Presidents have been:

Professor F. A. von Hayek	1947-60
Professor Wilhelm Röpke	1960-62
Professor John Jewkes	1962-64
Professor Friedrich Lutz	1964-67
Professor Bruno Leoni	1967
Professor Gunter Schmolders	1968-70
Professor Milton Friedman	1970-72
Professor Arthur Shenfield	1972-74
Professor Gaston Leduc	1974-

Members have included high governmental officials, men of affairs, journalists, and scholars - all philosophically isolated in their own communities and anxious to engage in discussion of fundamental issues with persons sharing common interests and points of view.

- 5) Meetings last a week, usually at the beginning of September. Papers on subjects of common interest are read, discussed, and criticized. The society has not sought publicity, but neither does it strive to be secretive or anonymous. It is a collection of individuals, no one of whom may speak for another.
- 6) Briefly, the society is composed of persons who continue to see the dangers to civilised society outlined in the statement of aims. They have seen economic and political liberalism in the ascendant for a time since the war in some countries but also its apparent decline in more recent times. Though not necessarily sharing a common interpretation, either of causes or consequences, they see danger in the expansion of government, not least in state welfare, in the power of trade unions and business monopoly, and in the continuing threat and reality of inflation.

*In his opening address (republished in Studies in Philosophy, Politics and Economics, Routledge, 1967), Professor Hayek considered the name "Acton-Toqueville Society". The name Mont Pelerin was chosen after the place of the first meeting, near Vevey on Lac Lemán, Switzerland.

- 7) Again without detailed agreement, the members see the Society as an effort to interpret in modern terms the fundamental principles of economic society as expressed by those classical economists, political scientists, and philosophers who have inspired many in Europe, America and throughout the Western world.
- 8) New members are elected by the Board of Directors after nomination by existing members to a membership committee appointed by the Board and generally only after the proposed member has attended one conference as a guest.
- 9) The Society normally does not publish the work of its members. The Society proposes, however, to circulate to members a Newsletter on publications, appointments, activities, and other interests important to its members.
- 10) Under its President, Professor Milton Friedman, the Society celebrated its 25th anniversary in 1972 at a conference in Montreux, near the original meeting-place on Mont Pelerin.

VIÑA DEL MAR, 22 de Junio de 1981

Señor

Estimado señor:

Nos es grato dirigirnos a Ud. para informarle acerca de la Reunión Regional que la Sociedad Mont Pelerin celebrará en Viña del Mar en el mes de Noviembre próximo.

Como es de su conocimiento, la Sociedad Mont Pelerin, fundada en 1947 por el profesor Friedrich von Hayek, reúne en su seno a profesores universitarios, académicos, investigadores, hombres de empresa y políticos en el propósito de debatir las ideas relacionadas con la permanencia de un sistema social libre. En el curso de su existencia, la Sociedad ha realizado diversas reuniones durante las cuales se han discutido los temas de mayor relevancia en el acontecer político, social y económico contemporáneo. Entre los académicos que han presidido esta sociedad pueden destacarse entre otros, los nombres de Friedrich von Hayek, Wilhelm Röepke, Milton Friedman y Arthur Shenfield.

The Mont Pelerin Society

En la Reunión Plenaria realizada el año recién pasado en la Hoover Institution, California, el Directorio de la Sociedad presidida ahora por el economista japonés Chiaki Nishiyama, acordó efectuar, por primera vez en nuestro país, la Reunión Regional correspondiente al año 1981. Será ésta la oportunidad para reunir a un importante grupo de miembros e invitados de la Sociedad de Latinoamérica, Estados Unidos, Europa y Oriente y quienes según el programa que le adjuntamos, analizarán temas de especial interés para el mundo occidental interviniendo como expositores y panelistas, profesores e investigadores de alto reconocimiento internacional.

La realización de esta reunión en Chile, al mismo tiempo de significar un honor y una alta responsabilidad, contempla el financiamiento de la misma en todos sus aspectos. El Comité Regional integrado por los señores Pedro Ibáñez, Carlos Francisco Cáceres, Rolf Lüders, Jorge Cavas, Pablo Baraona y Hernán Cortés, ha estimado necesario para esos efectos solicitar una contribución a las empresas de mayor importancia en el país en consideración a que los objetivos de la Sociedad Mont Pelerin están íntimamente vinculados a la permanencia de la iniciativa privada. Ello nos mueve a pedir a su empresa una ayuda financiera por $ 400.000.-

La favorable acogida a ésta solicitud constituirá para el Comité Regional la oportunidad de organizar en el país una Reunión que habrá de tener la mayor trascendencia.

Saluda a Ud. muy atentamente,

CHILE IN THE WORLD

II. GENERAL INFORMATION ON CHILE

It is a country of physical contrast, with clear cut characteristics and boundaries closed and opened like an island, between the Andes Mountains and the Pacific Ocean; in the north, a vast and formidable desert, and in the south, the eternal snows of the Antarctic.

This, however, by no means lessens the undying spirit of Chile to participate in the development of culture in this continent.

Chile offers a majestic succession of the highest Andean Peaks, eternally snowcovered volcanoes, great deserts, fjords, glaciers, magnificent lakes plus a fantastically beautiful 2,650 miles of Pacific coastline.

Coupled with Chile's incredible geography is a healthy climate, exceptional food and drink and eleven million friendly people.

AREA

741,767 square km plus
250,000 square km of Antarctic territories.

POPULATION

Over 11,000,000 inhabitants, mainly of European descent.

 PRINCIPAL CITIES

- Arica 93,000 inhabitants. Located 34 mi. south of Tacna, Perú, and 1,460 mi. north of Santiago. Arica is known as Chile's eternal spring city with an average year' round temperature of 68°F. Excellent beaches may be enjoyed all year, as well as Arica's night life centers around the popular Municipal Casino -set amid lush subtropical gardens.
- Iquique 65,000 inhabitants. Linked by fine highways and served by scheduled air and rail service. Iquique is 1,145 mi. north of Santiago. A beautiful free-port city, built around one of Chile's best natural harbours. Iquique hosted the 1972 World Skin Diving Championship where record swordfish and marlin were fished from its exceptionally clear offshore waters. The biggest fishing Companies of the country are located in this area.
- Antofagasta 202,000 inhabitants. The panamerican highway links Antofagasta with Perú, 475 mi. to the north, and Santiago, 857 mi. to the south. This city is a copper port and an important cultural and university center. Its traditional hotels and typical restaurants make it a pleasant place to discover the unexplored Desert of Atacama. Travelling inland you arrive at Chuquicamata, the world's largest openpit copper mine.
- La Serena 87,000 inhabitants. One of the South America's best preserved colonial towns. Located 292 mi. north of Santiago, La Serena is an increasingly popular resort city. La Serena's lush gardens combined with beautiful beaches lure visitors from throughout Chile and abroad.
- Santiago 4,265,000 inhabitants. Chile's cosmopolitan capital stands on a broad valley plain at 1,800 ft. above sea level. On the city's eastern edge an immense wall of the high Andes soars to 18,000 ft. Few world capitals have a more dramatic setting. Its particular location allows the visitors to enjoy the countryside with the vineyards, and rural villages, rich in typical handcraft and folk -lore, beautiful seaside resorts and winter ski centres, just two-hour drive apart from each other.
- Easter Island Alone, amid 1,000,000 square miles of empty ocean, lies and island so fascinating, experienced world travellers call it the most mysterious place on earth. Eastern Island lies 2,355 mi. due west from the Chilean coast and is roughly a 45 square mile triangle with a volcano on each corner. The isolated island is a vast outdoor museum, for its volcanic landscape is dotted with more than 600 giant statues that have puzzled the world for centuries.

Viña del Mar and Valparaíso

The twin cities of Viña del Mar (pop. 273,000) and the port of Valparaíso (pop. 266,000), 85 miles west of Santiago, are one of the most beautiful spots in the Pacific Coast. The coastline, running from north to south is dotted with inlets, bays and sandy beaches where we can appreciate changes in the colour of the sand.

Up in the hills, there are constructions of different styles, with narrow streets. The yatching club, share the promontories with the hotels and museums. On the bank of the Viña stream at a point near the sea front, you will find the Casino with its gambling lounges, cabarets and beautiful gardens. Travelling a little further north along the coast you will find other resorts. Reñaca has a pleasant beach, clubs, restaurants and summer residences, while Cochoa and Lilenes are centers for sampling typical Chilean food. A few kilometers further on, is the resort of Concón, lying between the coastal hills and the estuary of the Aconcagua river.

The sunny warm climate, the beautiful surrounding and the picturesque old port, together with the many activities to occupy oneself in Viña del Mar, have turned this area into the most important tourist center on the Pacific coast of South America.

Concepción and Talcahuano

(pop. 199,000 Concepción and 186,000 Talcahuano). This friendly, industrial and artisan center offers one of Chile's finest native markets for handcrafts and art. Located 251 mi. south of Santiago and served by buses and rail connections, has the highest rate of growth and the largest industrial concentration.

Valdivia and Osorno

(pop. 140,000 and 106,000 respectively). Located 502 mi. south of Santiago, Valdivia is gateway to the Chilean lakes and rivers, and Osorno with great German influence whose energy and hard work have created a leading agricultural center and a very attractive city.

Punta Arenas

(pop. 65,000). Most travellers to the "end of the world" arrive first in Punta Arenas the world's southernmost city. Located 1,432 mi. south of Valparaíso is connected to the outside world by ship, air and a highway to the neighbouring Argentina.

Chile's Antarctic

Chile possesses a vast, mountainous tract of the Antarctic, called O'Higgins Land. Chilean naturalists studying the country's 482,625 sq. mi. of Antarctic territory have already discovered 32 varieties of birds and immense sealife in the surrounding waters.

TRANSPORTS

An extensive network of roads and railways covers the whole country. There is a merchant navy, whose ships visit American, European, Asian and Australian ports. The same applies to the aircraft of the National Airline (LAN-CHILE), and the private airline company (LADECO), which link to the IATA system.

COMMUNICATIONS

There are numerous newspapers. The doyen, "El Mercurio", is the oldest in Spanish language. There are 100 private radio stations in all main cities; seven television channels and their relay stations, covering 98% of the population, from Arica to Magellan. Links with the whole world via satellite.

EDUCATION

The educational level of the Chilean people has been a major factor in its progress. Over 91% of all adults can read and write.

Primary education is compulsory and free in the public schools and more than 90 % (as of 1978) of the population finishes primary school. Thirty three percent completes the high school programme, and the country's eight universities training members of the liberal professions, engineers and excellent artists have 35 regional seats, in the most important cities, with a total of 140,000 students. The first Chilean University was founded as early as 1756.

ECONOMIC STRUCTURE

Chile's economic structure has traditionally been supported in a large proportion by the mining of its natural resources. The most important of these is certainly copper, and Chile produces approximately 16% of the copper from mines in the western world.

Nitrate, molybdenum, coal and iron ore have also been significantly exploited, but as time goes on, natural gas and oil are playing an increasing role in the economy as more extensive exploration activity gets under way, with multinational companies already in the process of drilling. Even now, petroleum production covers nearly one-third of the national requirements.

Feasibility studies are also underway on the reserves of uranium deposits that are known to exist.

But there are other important resources in Chile's economic structure. One of these is agriculture which has experienced profound changes during the last eight years, due to a policy of realistic prices and a strong private promotion of non traditional exports such as fruits, vegetables and others.

Also playing a significant part in the resource picture is lumber and its by-products. Chile has 7,600,000 hectares of natural forests, of which approximately 790,000 correspond to forest plantations and 700,000 to pine plantations.

Therefore, contributing importantly to the total economic structure of the country are the export of copper, iron ore, nitrate, coal and timber, as well as the agricultural, light industry, fishing, manufacturing, financing and services sectors. These, have considerably increased their participation in the economy of Chile.

ECONOMIC POLICY

The year 1973 was a year of important change in Chile. The existing political system came to an end amidst the chaos and inefficiency resulting from growing State intervention. The aim of the economic policy undertaken that year was to establish conditions that would permit the generation of a process of prosperity within the framework of liberty and justice.

A significant aspect of the Economic Policy is the definition of the subsidiary role of the State which gives the private sector the freedom to assign productive resources on a competitive basis. Thus the gradual opening of the national economy and the tariff reforms intended to free trade.

Another aspect is the management of public finance in such a way as to reduce the size of the public sector and at the same time to achieve the equilibrium which is an essential factor in the promotion of real stability in price levels. Finally, the State has assigned a significant portion of expenditure to subsidize improvements which will permit the elimination of extreme poverty which affects 20% of the Chilean population.

Other characteristics of the market system introduced are those referring to impersonal regulations and non-discriminatory treatment of the different national productive sectors which ensure the independence of the economic handling of the country from the political pressures that interest groups might exercise.

The results of the strategy applied can be seen in the various indexes among which the following stand out:

- The average growth rate of 7.3% for the last 5 years;
- Inflation, which reached 1,000% in 1973, will be approximately 10% by the end of 1981;
- The significant growth of non-traditional exports, which has increased over 17 times in the last eight years;
- The surplus in the public sector which permits a reduction in the tax load;
- An exchange rate policy consistent with the fiscal situation which has permitted the accumulation of important international reserves amounting to US$ 4,074 millions by the end of 1980;
- Financial reform has updated legislation and permitted the rapid development of the financial industry which now operates on the basis of free interest rates.

Other measures which will have important effects on economic evolution in Chile are those dealing with union organization and collective bargaining. Free association and negotiation by enterprise are the main characteristics of the system.

Since the new system was established there has been more than 3,000 bargaining processes with less than 3.5% of strikes.

Concerning social security, as of this year, workers are free to choose in which either State or private institution they will deposit their social security payments. After four months of activities almost 40% of the workers have moved to the new system.

Besides the measures already mentioned, there are others dealing with education, health, child nutrition, housing and other social programs which the present government has directed towards the poorest sectors of the population. However, the most recent innovation is the decentralization of administration whereby educational and health institutions now come under local jurisdiction. Local authorities are given clear responsibilities and, at the same time, an important channel is created for the participation of private citizens. The new university law will have an important effect on higher education by allowing the creation of new private institutions.

The whole government program is designed to establish a political system based on personal freedom which makes it possible to achieve sustained growth within the framework of equal opportunity.

M.P.S Regional Meeting August 30 - September 2 1981

In an earlier letter M.P.S members were invited to the Regional Meeting in Stockholm, the subject of which is "Beyond the Welfare State".

Members who wish to participate should have announced this intention before June 1. Therefore, because of the high demand for hotel rooms in Stockholm at this time, all who intend to participate but have not formally made their appropriate registration, are kindly asked to do so as quickly as possible. All details concerning registration can be found in the original invitation.

Cancellations will be accepted up to August 1. All fees including hotel deposits (minus a cancellation charge of US$ 20) will be refunded. After August 1 only registration fees can be refunded.

It is still possible for members to suggest guests to the Local Committee.

We believe that this will be a memorable conference and we hope that you will be able to attend.

On behalf of the Local Committee - a warm welcome to Stockholm!

Chairman

PRELIMINARY INFORMATION

At the M.P.S. meeting in Palo Alto in September 1980, it was decided to hold a regional meeting in Stockholm during 1981. The date has now been fixed for August 30 – September 2, 1981. Although Members of the Mont Pelerin Society are naturally invited, only a limited number of guests can be included this year owing to the size of the Meeting Hall. The Local Committee will, therefore, have to be very restrictive with regard to the number of guests invited, and its decision will be taken after consultation with the Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer of the Mont Pelerin Society.

The subject of the meeting will be "BEYOND THE WELFARE STATE". What will be the outcome of the breakdown of the present social security system? In order to facilitate a real debate from the floor, there will only be eight speakers, each followed by two commentators, making a total of twenty-four speakers and commentators.

The preliminary programme is set out on the attached sheet, and for those wishing to see more of Sweden and possibly visit Finland, it is hoped that conducted excursions can be arranged on the two days following the Conference – September 3 and 4. Particulars on this will be given later.

The conference will take place in the new Conference Hall of the Federation of Swedish Employers, Blasieholmsgatan 5, Stockholm. Lunches will be served at hotels in the vicinity. Accommodation has been arranged at the Grand Hotel, Hotel Mornington and Hotell Tegnérlund. The first two hotels are located within walking distance of the Conference Hall.

There will be a registration fee of U.S. $ 150 for Members, $ 200 for accompanying family members and $ 300 for guests, to be paid together with the definitive announcement of participation by bankers draft (preferably crossed) to the I.C.B. with indication that it concerns the M.P.S. Regional Meeting.

Speakers will have their travelling expenses and accommodation in Stockholm paid, commentators their travelling expenses.

Sweden being an expensive country, and Stockholm, unfortunately, currently one of the world's most expensive cities, the registration fee will only meet part of the expense for each participant. The rest will be raised by the Local Committee. The technical organization of the conference will be handled by the Stockholm Convention Bureau. Written enquiries should be addressed to the Bureau with "M.P.S." marked on the envelope. Needless to say, the Office of the Chairman of the Local Committee can also be approached.

THE MONT PÉLERIN SOCIETY

1983 REGIONAL MEETING/VANCOUVER/CANADA/AUGUST 28 - SEPTEMBER 1

Memo to: MPS Members

From: Sally C. Pipes, Conference Co-ordinator

Date: June 17, 1983

I am pleased to be able to send you a copy of the final programme for the Mont Pelerin Society meeting. For your convenience, I am also enclosing another copy of the Registration Form. In order to guarantee hotel accommodation, the previously circulated reservation cards must be returned to the hotel of your choice.

As the date of the meeting is rapidly approaching, I am now having to make several decisions which are related to the number of attendees. However, I realize many of you will not be able to return the Registration Form until the final deadline. Therefore, it would be most appreciated if you could complete and return the questionnaire so that I shall have a better estimate as to the number of participants.

We sincerely hope you will be able to join us in Vancouver.

Sally C. Pipes

- I plan to attend the MPS meeting.
